Aching to Connect by Suza Silvermarie, 2021

In the depths of a global trance of fear, we ache to connect. We create a sanity circle, asking ourselves, "What reality do I wish to broadcast, broadcast, broadcast?"

We depathologize our language. We lift each other to a vision beyond polarities. We optimize our self-talk. We hear each other declare: "I am part of making a global consciousness of love."

Aching to connect, we remedy the fear. We release it, release it. Breathing it out, not once, but every single time it rises. With our presence together, we make the space for change.
